

Award-Winning Program

In October 2010, the Puppies for Parole program received the 2010 Governor's Award for Quality and Productivity in the Innovation category. This is a team award recognizing service excellence, efficiency, innovation, technology, process improvement and employee development in Missouri state government.

Funding the Program

The Puppies for Parole program does not receive any general revenue funding from the state to support its activities. Rather, supplies and support come from partnering organizations, donations from offender organizations, individual offenders and community members.

PUPPIES For PAROLE

Rescuing dogs from a lifetime of pain ... releasing people to a lifetime of change.

About Puppies for Parole

Puppies for Parole is a unique program made possible through a partnership between the Missouri Department of Corrections, animal shelters and animal rescue groups. Selected offenders at participating institutions volunteer as dog trainers to teach basic obedience and socialization skills to the rescued canines, ultimately making them more adoptable. The program provides a valuable service to local communities while having a profound effect on the entire institutional population and staff. Once the dogs have successfully completed the program, they are placed for adoption.

Offender trainers are enrolled in an apprenticeship program through the U.S. Department of Labor. Through formal training, individualized study and on the job training, offenders earn a certificate in animal handling, which is recognized in all 50 states.

Program benefits

The benefits of the Puppies for Parole program are three-fold. The program gives offenders the skills necessary to support successful rehabilitation and re-entry, which ultimately improves public safety. At the same time, this is an opportunity for the offenders to begin to repay Missouri communities and repair some of the debts caused by their crimes. The department has witnessed this program have a profound effect on offenders and staff, increasing the safety and security of the facility.

- ❧ Provides an incentive for offenders to modify their behavior
- ❧ Enhances safe environments in prisons
- ❧ Promotes mental health in prisons
- ❧ Offers therapeutic treatment to offenders with mental or terminal illness

Since the beginning...

On Feb. 1, 2010, the department welcomed its first dogs into the program, and since then, Puppies for Parole has expanded to 19 institutions and has found homes for thousands of dogs.

In addition to training shelter dogs for household pets, the program has evolved into training canines as certified helper dogs. These dogs are being trained in the Advanced Puppies for Parole Program. To learn more about the Advanced Puppies for Parole Program or to learn more about adopting a certified helper dog, visit our website at doc.mo.gov.

Advanced P4P dogs have been trained for children and adults with special needs and as canine therapy dogs. The Advanced P4P program has trained dogs to be used in Missouri courts for children testifying in difficult cases. In addition, the program has trained dogs for placement in veterans' homes and skilled nursing facilities, and trained dogs for veterans suffering from PTSD.
